WEDNESDAY JANUARY 12, 1910

I owe all my success in life to having been always a quarter of an hour before time.—Lord Nelson.

It is an even bet which will reach here first, Halley's comet or five-cent sugar.

All this excitement and not one word from the wilds of Africa.
Who'd a think it?

A cyclone cellar is the only hope of Czar Nicholas since the flying machine has come to stay.

Don't be led into the belief that this is the time to part with your sugar stocks at reduced prices.

Still the public is wondering where the nations of the earth stand on the neutralization of the Manchurian railway.

Go to the poultry show and you can better understand why it is that such magnificent hens lay such high-priced eggs.

Really, but doesn't the Hon. Philander C. Knox appear to be getting into all sorts of rows abroad, while Ballinger is mixing things at home?

We could depend upon it that Mayor Jim Quinn would give us good roads and do everything to help the tourists enjoy themselves. What more could you ask?

"Childhood and Imagination" would apparently be a good title for the morning report of the last Liquor Commission meeting, if one may judge from the explanations that follow it.

The city of Honolulu should appropriate enough money to provide for a full-sized military band. The band is not only a benefit to local residents, but it is a definite tourist attraction.

If you would educate your children away from the paper-collar-cigarette-tude level, teach them the dignity of labor, by equipping your public schools to train them in the practical affairs of life.

Big Brother Bill, Uncle Philander and Archibald are doing stunts that were once called strenuous, but the Return from Elba Club refuses to allow the sacred term to be applied since Roosevelt policies disappeared from official utterances.

Members of the House of Representatives must be convinced that the country needs the fortifications, when they allow a ninety-two million dollar appropriation for the army to be passed the second week after the holiday recess.

Refusal of any paper to publish it, is the only thing about Judge Hart's communication that might astonish intelligent readers. That journal must have a fine sense of discrimination which throws its columns open to the fulminations of the Atherleys, for instance, but refuses a hearing to a gentleman of Judge Hart's learning and recog-

EVENING SMILES

Noah Webster was, as might naturally be supposed, a stickler for the correct use of English, and he had frequent occasion to take exception to Mrs. Webster's use—or, as he termed it, misuse—of words.
On one occasion Webster happened to be in the dining-room alone, when a very pretty housemaid entered.
Noah, being somewhat susceptible to feminine charms, according to the chronicler, walked over to the girl, put his arms about her waist, and kissed her squarely on the mouth.

Just at this moment Mrs. Webster entered the room, gasped, stood aghast, and in a tone of horror exclaimed:
"Why, Noah, I am surprised!" Whereupon Mr. Webster, coolly and calmly, but with every evidence of disgust, turned upon her. "How many times must I correct you on the use of simple words?" he remarked. "You mean that you are astonished. I, madam, am the one that is surprised."

The minister regarded the little girl gravely. She was a demure little thing in her simple white frock, but her big eyes were full of mischief.

"Well, little girl, do you say your prayers?" asked the minister suddenly. He had come to dinner, and the housemaid had been called from the room for a space of some minutes.
"Oh, yes, sir," she answered.
"And what do you say, little maid?"

She repeated a little prayer softly.
"Mother taught it to me and I say it every night," she added.
"Do you say a prayer in the morning, too, my dear?" he asked, well pleased.

"Ye-es," said the child. "Tisn't one mamma taught me; I heard nurse say it."

"And what is it?"

"It's 'Oh, Lord, how I hate to get up.'" parently unbiased statements of the situation in England that has come to the attention of this paper is contained in a letter to the New York World from an occasional London correspondent. This writer says that while this is no ordinary election, the excitement is little more than normal. "The Britisher has unlimited confidence in his powers of sane self-government."

The policy of each party is equally revolutionary. One is revolutionary change, the other revolutionary reaction.

The Liberals want to emasculate the House of Lords and make the representative chamber once for all the predominant partner.

The Tories, on the other hand, wish to deprive the House of Commons of its one effective prerogative, the unfettered control of finance.

If the Liberals win, it means that the Tories will be deprived of all their most treasured privileges; that all bills passed through the House of Commons by a Liberal Government must be accepted by the Lords within the lifetime of a single Par-its back. Deprived of this expedient, the Tories will be placed on equal terms with the Liberals and will exercise only so much power and for such period as the people leave them in office.

If the Tories win, the House of Lords will be invested by popular sanction with autocratic power.
Their action in usurping the elective chamber's control over finance will have been approved. The Liberal party will not only be defeated, but disrupted. The moderate section, who are only following Mr.
Lloyd-George and Mr. Winston Churchill because it looks a winning game, will spare no time in denouncing them as the authors of the party's misfortune if it should turn out to be a losing one. When Gladstone was routed in 1886 it virtually gave the Tories the upper hand for twenty years. If the Liberals are badly beaten this time the consequence may prove equally disastrous. The moderates would secede to the Tories and a new Radical party would be formed, to renew the fight, under highly discouraging conditions, by Mr. Lloyd-George and Mr. Churchill.

These are two of the most remarkable men that English politics have evolved in a generation. There has been nothing quite like them before.
They are both gifted with the most absolute courage. But what distinguishes them more than that from the ruck of able politicians is their entire absence of all reverence for the fetishes which even Liberals and Radicals have been wont to worship.
They are not awed by rank; they are totally indifferent to social influences; they attack with a light heart the strongholds of entrenched wealth.

The policy that is now before the country is ostensibly the policy of the Cabinet. It is in reality the policy forced on the Cabinet of Lloyd-George and Winston Churchill after many a tough fight and more than one ultimatum from them threatening resignation. Now that the policy has been acclaimed by the party and has placed it in a position of aggressive strength that enables it to face a general election with the prospect of a great triumph, it has become the policy of a united Cabinet. A year ago if the Tories had been able to force a general election they would have snatched the Liberals under. The improved standing of the Liberal party is due to the budget that Lloyd-George and Winston Churchill compelled the Cabinet majority to accept.

They were not, of course, in a minority of two in this struggle. They had the support almost throughout of Lord Morley, Mr. Lewis Harcourt, Mr. Birrell and the late Marquis of Ripon, though at times they were left to fight their corner alone. Mr.
Asquith, it is understood, has maintained a judicial attitude, but, curiously enough, the opposition to some of the budget proposals in the Cabinet—notably the tax on undeveloped land—was led by Mr. John Burns.

The constitutional question between the Lords and Commons seems to interest the electors less than the fiscal question that lies behind it.
The issue in this respect is also clearly defined, so that it is intelligible to the meanest comprehension.
The Tories, if returned, intend to tax food and manufactured imports, giving a preference to the colonies, promising that by so doing they will stop unemployment and increase the rate of wages.

The Liberals say that they propose to tax the superfluities of the rich, while the Tories want to tax the necessities of the poor. Unfortunately for the Tories, at a time when it is of vital importance to them that trade should be going down, it persists in showing a tendency to improve. Unemployment, which was, to have been their strong card, and was one of the reasons why they forced the election in the hard winter months, is much less acute than it was last year. The Tories are not working for them. The attempt to revive the German scare is not meeting with the same success as on former occasions.

of detecting cases and localities, working to this end in cooperation with government physicians and san-ary steps such as fumigation and disinfection, cooperating therein with the fumigating department of the board; care of cases and contacts where such cases can not be removed from their homes, carrying out a system of education and instruction as to how to avoid contracting or

MAN-A-LIN Is An Excellent Remedy for Constipation.

There are many ailments directly dependent upon constipation, such as biliousness, discolored and pimply skin, inactive liver, dyspepsia, overworked kidneys and headache.

Remove constipation and all of these ailments disappear.

MAN-A-LIN can be relied upon to produce a gentle action of the bowels, making pills and drastic cathartics entirely unnecessary.

A dose or two of Man-a-lin is advisable in slight febrile attacks, in grippe, colds and influenza.

charge the care and examination of schools and vaccination of school children. To assist him in his work he will have a nurse or nurses and such other force as may be allowed by the funds in hand. In brief, it will be the main duty of this bureau to ascertain cases and their locality, improving sanitary conditions in crowded portions of the city, leaving as the main work of other branches of this work the care of advanced cases and the providing of quarters for such persons. It is expected, however, that the board on the one hand and the combined organizations on the other hand will cooperate wherever they can to assist each other in their divisions of work. The board's work is initial work, and in the conduct of such it is felt that the physician in charge should be provided with an adequate force of assistants. The proffer of an assistant or assistants by other organizations would greatly facilitate this work. The appropriation of $18,000 is to be applied to the Territory as a whole.

There are many other lines along which such cooperation can be carried out, and it is in part for that reason that this meeting is called.
The Territorial appropriation is small in value as compared with the value of the interest and material assistance that is being offered and given by others. It has been felt necessary that some organization be effected under the government as a basis upon which to build in the fu-

ALAMEDA TAKES FEW PASSENGERS

Over one hundred cabin passengers could have been accommodated in addition to the very small flat that sailed for San Francisco this morning by the Oceanic Steamship liner Alameda.

"This sort of crowd doesn't offer a whole lot of encouragement for the placing of additional passenger steamers on the Honolulu-San Francisco run," was the remark made by an interested official of the company as the Alameda finally got away from her wharf with but twenty-two passengers in the saloon.

The band was present as usual and a pleasing program of melodies assisted in speeding the departing travelers.

The Alameda carried a fair freight list, including sugar, pineapples and other Hawaiian products.

A score or more Hindus who arrived by the oriental liners some days ago continued their journey to California by the vessel.

LEWIS & CO. STOCK WILL BE SACRIFICED

Theo. H. Davies & Co. have taken over the entire remaining stock of the grocery house of Lewis & Co., and will close it out at sacrifice prices. It is very seldom that the Honolulu housewife has the opportunity of buying such staple and necessary things as foodstuffs at bargain prices, but this certainly is an exception. Davies & Co. announce that they will not let price stand in the way of sales but will dispose of the goods at such marked reductions that the sale will be quickly consummated. The sale is now in progress and it behooves those of an economical turn of mind to lose no time in taking advantage of it.

DETECTIVE BUREAU

Chief McDuffie is gradually narrowing the possible number of chauffeurs who may have run down A. H. Smith the other night, to just a couple of scores. The whole matter is expected to be made clear in a short while now, and it will go hard with the man who is afraid to come forward and take the blame.

An arrest has been made in regard to the robbery of $98 which was committed at Iwilei the other night. A damsel named Eugene Honesse—spelled with an "e" not a "t"—was taken to the police station last night.
Her case will be heard tomorrow morning and, in the meantime, the sailor who lost the coin appears to have some chance of getting some of it back again.

Jachinto Gomes, a Portuguese, who stabbed and cut Waikiki, the man who was suspected of killing Henry Wetherill some time ago, is in the lockup.
Waikiki was discharged from hospital this morning and is rapidly recovering from his wounds which were very serious ones.

Gomes has been charged with assault with a knife and hall has been allowed in the sum of $500. The case will come up before Judge Andrade tomorrow morning.

Although no arrest has been made of the man who robbed Jerry Coker of some money and valuables, McDuffie has a pretty good idea of who did the job and is only waiting for a little more evidence before making the arrest.
